General Information

Ottawa Valley Land Rovers is the oldest and largest Land Rover club in Canada. Membership is open to all Land Rover enthusiasts. Executive meetings are held on the first Monday of every month. Social meetings are held on the third Monday of every month, generally at the Prescott Hotel on Preston Street.

OVL R offers a monthly newsletter and a variety of activities throughout the year, from mechanical seminars and off-road rallies to social events and family oriented outings. Members receive discounts on parts from a number of North American suppliers. Off-road activities come in several categories. The light version, which is usually entertainment during a rally or at one of our family summer events, consists of a little "mud bogging" or tours along country lanes. The heavy stuff, which is usually several days across public lands navigating by compass, topographical maps and aerial photos, involves bridge building, river barging, and driving conditions ranging from cedar swamp to rocky hill winching.

Membership: Canadians joining throughout the year pay $45 CDN per year, Americans and others pay $45 US per year (discounts available if you receive newsletter by email). Membership is valid for one year.

President's Message

BY PETER MCGOUGH

I would like to thank all of the folks who made the Maple Syrup rally a great success this year. Peter Gaby yet again excelled at the breakfast preparations and it was great to see everyone chip in with the preparations or the clean-up. The informal plan with a few folk was to arrive at the Quyon Ferry at 9.00. For once I was about on time and was amazed that the slipway was filled, as far as the eye could see, with Land Rover Products. With Verne and I pulling the trailer to be the last to get on the ferry and unhooking and jiggling it around, there was no room for Bruce Ricker. A ferry full of Land Rovers left the shore to the sounds of the Last Post and Bruce snapping his best Sergeant Majors salute. Soon after arriving at Vern and Linda's wonderful place, the trailer was set up (we need someone (McD) to write instructions!) and breakfast was underway. If anyone had digestive problems after eating my French Toast ... What were you thinking of eating my French Toast! The trick is apparently the correct dip-time, the correct griddle temperature and the right time to cook the middle without burning the outside. Who knew it was so complicated. I didn't see anybody keel over so it must have had a time fuse!

The off road afterwards was fun with a number of major mud holes that all got through. And here I must digress; the Saturday afternoon before the MSR Andrew Finlayson and Frank Ashworth arrive at Chez McGough to help clean the trailer from its winter slumber. I had spent the morning changing the winch carrier back to the 10,000 lb Champion Winch I had at the Birthday Party. I had the slipping clutch repaired at BB Services and after the trailer cleaning we reattached the cable to the drum and started to rewind it, towing Frank's Range Rover up the drive. It just slipped again!! Frank then kindly helped me to remove the Champion and put back the 6000 lb Warn I took off in the morning. Back to the MSR. When we arrived at the hill whose name shall not be spoken, mostly because I don't think it has one, it was clear that the stream that runs down it had melted just enough of the mud to make things interesting. It was decided that we would see how the folks with winches, Andrew Hutton and I, would do and so we were volentold to descend. The descent was pretty straight forward but both Andrew and I had to winch our way up 50% of the ascent. The Warn 6000 performed faultlessly.

Meanwhile, back with the Champion Winch. BB Service wanted another wad of money to fix what I paid them to fix in the first place. I was not happy. However, a snotty letter to Champion worked wonders and Champion responded promptly and had the winch fixed under warranty. I picked the winch up on Friday from a very surly BB Services and we will see how it works. But kudos to Champion for stepping up to the plate as, although little used, the winch was well out of warranty.

The Warn 6000 was also heavily used in helping Frank and Matt out of a bog on Soldiers Line in Munster Hamlet this week-end. I was surprised not to have had to use a snatch block as Frank's Range Rover was well and truly glued in the mud but the plucky 6000 came through. It was great to be able to assist and demonstrate what the key to this club is, camaraderie. I think there might be more about this in the next newsletter.

On a sad note we heard a few weeks ago that Bruce Ricker's wife, Joey, died after a long struggle with MS. Joey was always supportive of Bruce's activities and even with the tremendous difficulties she lived with she wanted to support the RTV challenge we have at the Birthday Party. I am sure that you will join with me in passing on our deepest sympathies to Bruce during this difficult time.

I am sure that the word had gotten round about Joey's passing as we had a tremendous show of support at the Social and I would like to pass on a personal note of thanks to all those who could attend.

With best wishes,

*Peter

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY BEN SMITH

In February 1990 I didn't know what a Land Rover was. Sure I'd seen "The Gods Must be Crazy", laughed when the Series I 86" was winched up a tree and was amazed at the wide river fording. But if you asked me I couldn't have picked one out of a line up of cars on a bet. I was ignorant of all things Land Rover and was off in sunny southern California attending University as a freshman. I didn't even have a car.

Back in New Jersey, one of my father's coworkers knew about Land Rovers. In fact he had one sitting in his driveway. It has been sitting there for years since he did something, melted the wiring harness, and let the smoke out. He'd bought a new wiring harness from somewhere, likely Atlantic British, and armed with the Haines manual pulled out the dash and the old harness and attempted to install the new one. He got it about half installed and of what he did half was wrong. So he gave up. And it sat, forlornly, in his driveway for three years. Until the day his wife told him to get that thing out of the driveway; it looked bad next to her shiny, new Porche 911.

At this point he decided to try to unload the Land Rover on my father. He brought up the subject over the lunch table on a few occasions. He pointed that it would be a good car for Ben. Slow. Sturdy. Ben could get it running again. Marty didn't want much for it. After a few days Dad said, "Ok Marty, I'll come over tonight and give the Land Rover a look."

That night Dad mentioned to Mom that he was going to head over Marty's and take a look at this Land Rover that he was pestering about. Now going to look at a dead Land Rover isn't as daft as it seems. In grad school in the late 1960s Dad had a 1954 Jaguar XK120 which he intended to get running again and a Triumph motorcycle that was stolen. In the mid 1970s we had a MG Sedan. In 1977 we bought a 1976 Austin Marina from British Leyland not knowing that they were abandoning the market six months later. I learned to drive with that Austin. British cars and their quirks were quite familiar to us. However Dad didn't get the chance to go take a look at the Land Rover. Marty did a preemptive strike. He had it towed the seven miles over to our house and dropped off in our driveway. They talked and somehow Dad agreed. $1500 changed hands. And the 1972 Series III 88" Land Rover who became known as Dora came into our lives. March 1990. Twenty years ago this month.

I heard about it via a phone call. Dad taken a few photos and sent them off to me in snail mail—he didn't have email and attaching photos to an email wouldn't be invented for another six years in 1996. I couldn't wait and found a copy of the 1973 British Military Equipment Catalogue in the House library. I looked at photos of 88s, 109s, 101s and Lightweights not knowing what was closest to our Land Rover. I looked in parking lots to see if I could see a Land Rover in the flesh and failed (not knowing that British Pacific was on the other side of town).

I returned home from University that summer and immediately started working on the Landy. I got the electrics in. She fired right up with some starter fluid. I was smitten. I had a Land Rover. We'll ok it wasn't mine yet—it was Dad's. I drove it that summer—rod knock and all. We didn't think that she'd survive driving across country so that fall I took the surplus family car (a 1980 Datsun 510 with 180k miles on the clock) there and back again in the spring.

The initial rat's nest of wiring

Summer of 1991 we attended the ABP rally. The week before I was scheduled to drive back to California, we dropped in a rebuilt short block. I did the five hundred mile oil change in a rest area in Ohio. I've had that 88" ever since.

If you'd asked me twenty years ago if I'd still have a Land Rover today I'd have said no. But it became a significant part of my life. If Dad had said "no" to Marty, I'd likely never have heard of OVLRL, have never been stuck in the swamp on the heavy off-road at the Birthday Party, never off-roaded in Moab, never rebuilt a fuel pump on the side of a road with a brake rebuild kit, never had to rebuild an engine with low oil pressure in Dixon's laneway so that I could limp 800 miles home, never had to swap a blown head gasket in the rain at zero C in the middle of the night on a thousand mile trek up to Seattle for a friend's funeral, never been to the WinterRomp, or the MAR, or Greek Peak. And most of all I never would have met the great cast of characters and anoraks that make up our club and the Land Rover community at large.

For me it has been a wonderful journey and I wonder what the next twenty will bring?

New OVLRL Event!!

BY BRIAN SCOTT—OVLRL OFF-ROAD CO-ORDINATOR

This fall OVLRL will be instituting a new event to wrap up the off roading season. The event will coincide with the peak in fall colours. The proposed route will be the K&P trail from Perth to Calabogie. This is a greenlane event suitable for all Land Rovers. Bring the family and a picnic lunch.

A guesstimate of when this will take place is somewhere around the second weekend in September. Of course, the exact weekend will have to be confirmed closer to the actual day. I will put another reminder in the August newsletter. But, put this in your calendars and stay tuned for an email from Terry to confirm the actual date.

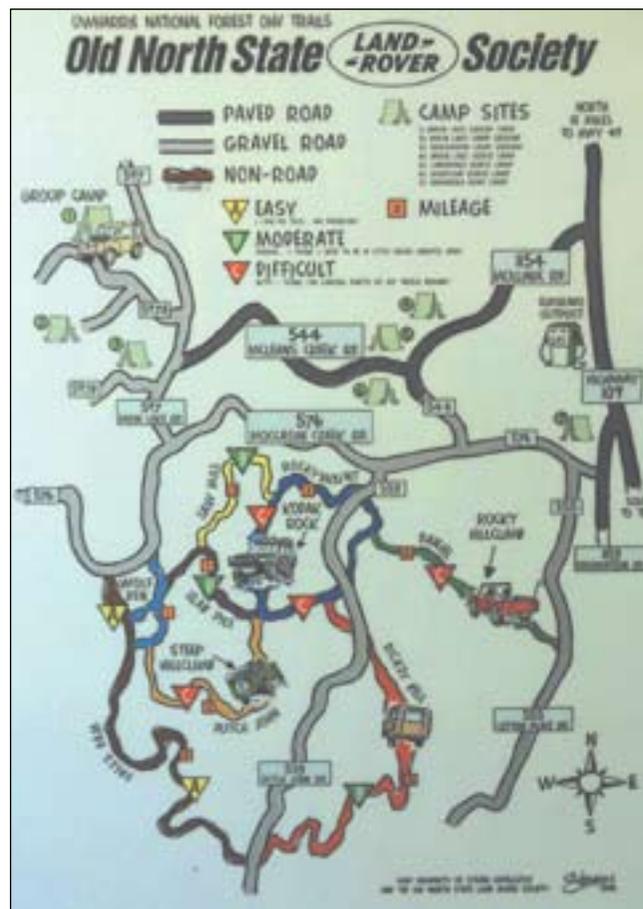

Uwharrie Safari

Troy, North Carolina

SUBMITTED BY D. KENNER

This past weekend I went with Dave down to the Uwharrie Safari, a Rover event put on by the Carolina Rover Owners Club in the Uwharrie National Forest in western North Carolina. A small event compared to the MAR, or about the size of the Birthday Party. I counted about fifty trucks there. Unlike the Birthday Party, which seems to draw more Series vehicles than any other event I am familiar with, probably fifty percent or more of the vehicles were Discoverys, weighted in favour of the D1's. Equal number of D2's and Range Rovers, all Classics, but for a bloated HSE which did not go off road (a tow vehicle for a NAS D90). There were two 109 SWs there, both IIAs. Four 88's, 3 IIAs, one II. What was surprising was the number of RHD Defenders there. More than I expected, A number of NAS D90's and two NAS 110s. As well, there were two specialised buggies built from Range Rovers. There could have easily been more than that at the Rally, as people camped elsewhere, there were a couple of nooks and crannies off the main group campsite that was hiding more vehicles. The event is about seven hours in Dave's D90 from Washington DC (Google Maps says about fifteen hours from Ottawa).

In a way, it was like one of the earlier Birthday Party's. Low key, no yahoo's running about at night like at the MAR. It was very relaxed and enjoyable. The people are all quite nice and relaxed. Despite a lot of rain on Thursday (we arrived at eleven PM Thursday night), there was very little water on the trails. They were quite dry. The dust, combined with pollen made it challenging for people with allergies. This is not the usual situation down there for this event. We (read Dave) did all of the cooking, so I've no idea on the club's offerings in terms of food, though they did have meals available. We were camped next to the "Guns and Rover's" group, who arrived in a IIA 109 station waggon, a II 88", as well as Range Rover and Disco.

The terrain is very undulating and Oregon Trail. There were about 12 groups of 10-15 kids building wagons. We are not talking about little red wagons but ones that one or two horses would pull. Complete, they loaded them up with all types of gear and bit later we saw them on the roads. It seems that each group was going to have to push each of their wagons from the group camp over the Uwharrie river using the horse trails.

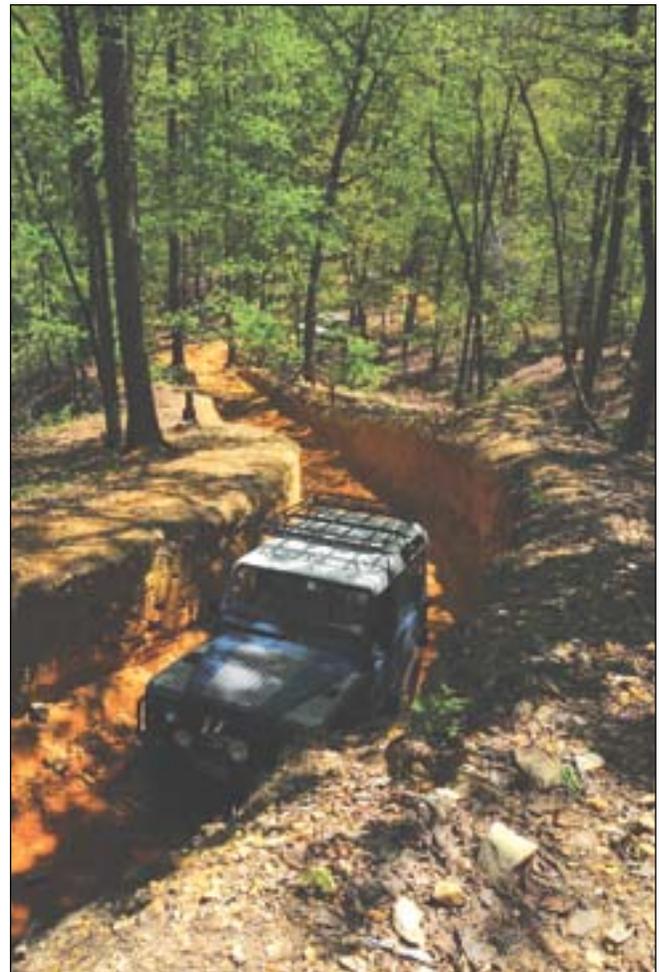

The rally was a lot of fun. Even had a 3am - 4am chat with a Republican that would have made Russ Wilson the trails are well maintained by Forestry Dept bulldozers (check out the hill climb in photo). There are regular berms across the trails on all of the slopes, to divert water and reduce ruts, least the trails turn into ravines. These berms also tend to slow anyone who wishes to proceed at too enthusiastic speed down the trails. The trails are quite rocky and technically challenging, the very challenging with multiple approaches as well as bypasses. Dave's 90 with TDi and lockers (not really needed at all) did extremely well, as did a D110 (V8) with open diffs driven by Charles, a friend of Dave's from DC. The couple of Series vehicles were spotted in various places along the trails. To do it in an 80 inch would be a lot of fun.

The photos, as usual, do not do the steepness of some of the climbs justice. It would be quite easy to batter the underside of a vehicle quite effectively (as the photo of the mangled Southdown steering guard that was on an (Joe Tolerico's former) 110 demonstrates. A Jeep lost a transfer box, a Dakota had some significant damage from rock hits from inattentive drivers. One hillclimb, aptly called Kodak Rock, is just a field of bedrock and rock crawling. Daniel's Trail has an excellent hill climb that is quite challenging and unlike anything that I have seen here in eastern Ontario. It is very different terrain from eastern Ontario with all of the water, swamp, rounded glaciated bedrock.

While driving between trail heads we found a large group of Mormons who were re-enacting the

That is a deep rut! When wet, very difficult. The Forest Service gets rid of ruts with a bulldozer. Having trails below grade also tends to encourage vehicles from going elsewhere.

or Spenny proud. A fascinating conversation as this chap really believed that there were soon to be “death councils” judging the fitness of people to live or die under ObamaCare; that only individuals should be taxed, not corporations at all. I could go on, and did poke a few holes here and there, the best of which was that Canadian health care is so bad that our Prime Minister had to go to Florida recently for heart surgery, a small event that has eluded the Canadian (or international) media, since Harper is in pretty good shape. A really nice chap though, but the politics, wow! In fact, I can’t emphasise more how nice the various people were down at this event.

Unlike OVLRL, ROAV, and some other clubs I am familiar with, there was no auction, but they do run a raffle of a lot of things.

There are lots of switch backs. And the camber is very wrong in places. Lots of choices on what path to follow up three or four crisscrossing here

One of the trails, Kodak Rock, is a very large, very rocky, hill climb. Very technical. Lots of vehicles, and spectators there, waiting for someone to do something very silly.

We drove just about every trail on the map. All were possible one way in the two full days of driving available to us. To do them from the other direction would have also been challenging and fun.

In conclusion, Dave’s encouragement for people to go down and try out this rally is genuine. It was very enjoyable. There were plenty of other groups there, but with the berms, the bulldozers mave made notches in the trail to quickly move aside. There were no traffic jams that we really experienced.

Kodak Rock

The other drivers are very polite. We had the opportunity to drive just about all of the trials ourselves, only meeting other groups occasionally. It’s too bad that it is so far from Ottawa.

Note for those thinking that cooling food and such can be a PITA. Dave has picked up a very efficient 12v cooler that will freeze water if necessary. No worries about your food floating in meltwater, finding ice. it cooled the beer rapidly and efficiently, and does not draw that much power.
